Foreword

Yes—the launching time of the 1938 Annual of The Christ Hospital School of Nursing has arrived, and we christen the book with cherished memories of the past and fond hopes for the future.

To all the students we wish to give this message: In choosing nursing as a profession, you have chosen well. When your best efforts are seemingly being overtaxed, just remember that your dividends are high, and the goal for which you are striving is well worthy of your time and sacrifices.

For the graduating class, we have a special message: In a short time you will have the privilege of wearing a black band on your cap—that insignia which sets you apart as graduate nurses. In order to acquire that black band, you have had to meet certain requirements which have been set up for you by your School of Nursing. As graduate nurses, however, you are responsible for choosing your own standards, and may your aim be high. Remember that there are no minor positions in nursing; all are of major importance, as you are dealing with human life itself. The chief requirement of any graduate nurse, in any field of nursing she may select, is to be a good bedside nurse.

That each and every one of you may achieve success and happiness in all your endeavors is a most earnest wish of your sponsor. There is a secret for getting the most out of life. You guessed right! Just put your best into it.

FRANCES MILDRED PATTON.

FRANCES MILDRED PATTON

Dedication

To you, Miss Patton, we dedicate our Annual. Your willing and faithful guidance of our class as sponsor is appreciated more than words can express. You have set our aim high, and we hope to fulfill your ideals.

THE EDITORS.

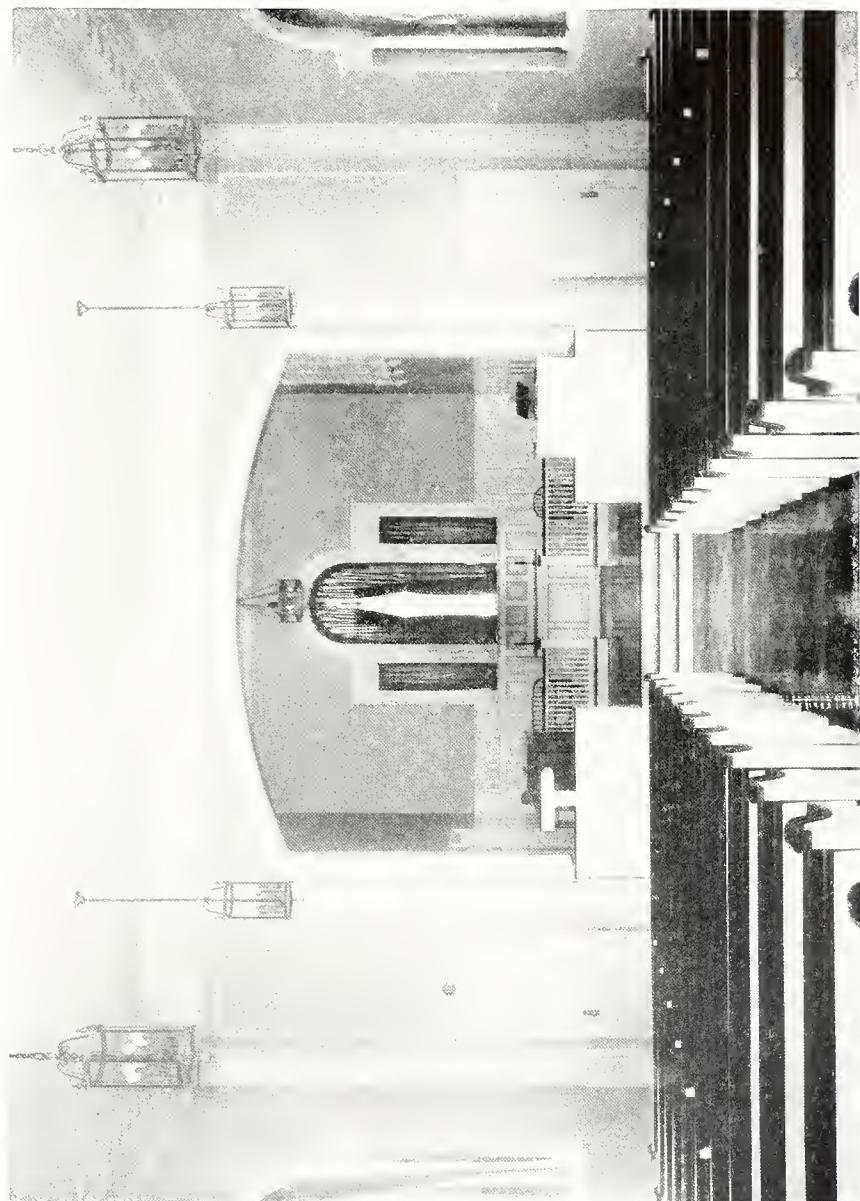

My Creed

I have to live with myself and so—
I want to be fit for myself to know.
I want to be able as the years go by
Always to look myself straight in the eye.
I don't want to stand with the setting sun
And hate myself for the things I've done.

I want to go out with my head erect.
I want to deserve all men's respect.
But here in the struggle for fame and self,
I want to be able to like myself.
I don't want to look at myself and know
That I'm bluster and bluff and empty show.

I never can hide myself from me.
I see what others may never see,
I know what others may never know—
I never can fool myself—and so
Whatever happens, I want to be
Self-respecting and conscience-free.

Your School and My School

With Apologies to Wilbur G. Nesbit
Author of
"Your Flag and My Flag"

Your School and my School!
And how it stands today;
In your mind and my mind
To guide us on our way.
Through glad times and sad times
How like a beacon light,
To show the path of duty,
The way of truth and right!
May your mind and my mind
Be filled with memories dear,
Of school days, the real days,
The days of yesteryear.

Your School and my School!
And oh, how much it means!
Your life and my life
Were fashioned here, it seems.
Your heart and my heart
Beat truer at the sight
Of our beloved colors
The Royal Blue and White.
And so The Christ Hospital School,
The School for you and me;
Your School and my School,
Throughout eternity.

Your School and my School!
And may we ne'er forget
That you owe and I owe,
In gratitude, a debt
To your School and my School;
And because of this, I know
That your love and my love
Will never cease to grow,
For your School and my School,
And together we will try
To Be true, and Stay true,
To dear old CHSN.

Night Duty

"The slip is up"—we hear the student say—
That's night duty for me a week from today.
Report for duty at 11:00 o'clock"—
Which means that "late leaves" will have to stop.

(When this week does roll around, here is an incomplete picture of what usually happens.)

Buz---z-z-z-z-z-z-z-!

"What's that—my alarm clock? Oh, no—my buzzer.

"Hello, a call for me?

"Why, hello, Bill. I sound sleepy? Well, I just got up. To a movie? Sure—but I have to be in by 10:00 o'clock.

"Shhhhhh—such language, Bill! Sure, I'm on night duty again.

"Well, O. K. See you in half-an-hour."

Then later in the evening (10:50, to be exact):

The student, all out of breath, signs in the "late leave" book and wonders how many "demerits" that will be to her credit. Hopes it isn't enough for a "campus". She dashes for the elevator—rushes to her room—dresses hurriedly, and reports for duty just as the clock strikes 11:00.

"Any new patients? Two? And a possible emergency?"

The student closes her eyes in an assumed faint and holds her head with both hands to steady her emotions.

Lights flash! And the complaints she hears:

1. "Pain in my back."
2. "Can't sleep."
3. "Nauseated."
4. "Bed pan."
5. "Drink of water."

And so far into the night the student dashes from room to room giving back rubs, fluffing pillows, filling ice bags, assisting with nourishments, passing medicines, giving "hypos", and perhaps assisting a mentally disturbed patient to sleep by just a friendly "chat" or a kind word of expression.

Then there are those always dreaded moments when death lurks near. There are relatives to comfort, doctors to assist—all this to be accomplished without neglecting the patients in a less serious condition, and without confusion on the part of the nurse.

"Monotonous"—you say? Never!

There comes a certain satisfaction of having done your best and of giving comfort to those who are physically and mentally below par. This satisfaction compensates for tired, aching feet—loss of sleep—and weary hours of watchful, hopeful waiting.

That's night duty to me.

GLADYS LYKINS.

Night Supervisors

MISS URSULA HALL

MISS WILMINA OAKES

MISS FRANCES LAMPE

Darkness falls once more on the great metropolis. To many it is the end of another day of work and they are glad of being able to settle down to an evening of quiet and relaxation. To a night nurse it means she is able to give care to those less fortunate, those who look forward to a night of rest in hopes of feeling better at the coming of dawn. Many need constant attention during the night, as well as during the day; treatments that lend to their comfort and cure, medicines that aid in relief of pain.

In addition to direct nursing care there is routine sterilizing and cleaning of equipment to be done. Each chart, the individual record of a patient, is ruled at midnight to signify the beginning of a new day. Accurate notes are kept for the benefit of the new shift of nurses and for the doctors. Early in the morning special care is given to patients who are to be operatives during the day.

So frequently the routine of night duty is broken by patients who are admitted and rushed to surgery for emergency operations.

Night duty dull? Never! It is, we believe, the most exciting and fascinating term of duty one experiences as a student nurse.

Our Graduate Group

I really feel that I should put on a "pink coat" before I attempt this problem of discussing the activities of our graduates and supervisors. I don't really know whether there is an organized Hunt Club or not, but there certainly seems to be a great deal of "riding to hounds".

Now, don't get me wrong—they really are a very smart-looking lot, and the only thing that puzzles me is the fact that they seem to come to work the next morning with sore neck muscles, instead of the result that would seem to be expected.

There seems to be a great deal of marrying in the group also, and Miss Johnson gives each and every one a farewell tea. That should inspire you, one and all.

Vigil in White

I see her as she passes by
In white, sedately prim;
Nor will the dignity she holds
Thro' all the years grow dim.

She shows us strength and beauty,
And fun, where it should be;
So many things she is in one!
Or so it seems to me.

She holds me when I fain would go
To lands across the way;
She soothes me when my troubled mind
Is wont to go astray.

You can see no trace of worry,
Or the grief that's in her heart,
When all earthly cares have failed her
And she sees a soul depart.

So sincerely and so surely
She has done her very best,—
Even those who grieve their loved ones
Shall regard her as one — blest.

From Beginning to End

It was a sunny day in August, 1935, when sixty-some girls gathered together in the chapel from various parts of the country to start on a long, three-year journey together.

The first few days were exciting ones, in the rush of getting initiated into the entirely new life of a student nurse. All were examined from head to foot, then given sweet "big sisters" to guide and console them when home seemed so far away.

At the end of each month they nervously gathered in the chapel, to learn if they were privileged to stay another month.

As is usually the case, the "probies" created a lot of free entertainment for all, with their young, awkward ways and their two hours of painfully perfect bathing and leaking hot-water bottles.

At last another important step was achieved when on a cold day in December a dainty white cap was pinned atop their curls and a cape thrown over their shoulders. Now, indeed, were they a part of this great institution. They were Sophomores.

The following January, on a cold, blustery day, another group of preliminaries joined their ranks and experienced somewhat the same trying period as their sisters before them. They were finally capped at an impressive ceremony in May.

From that time on, the two classes joined together and were known as the Sophomores, with Margaret Yoder ably leading them. Along with this new title came more class-work—more experiences on the floor—and more thrills as they entered their first terms of night duty.

The Junior year was important, as that was the beginning of our special duty—Operating Room—Diet Kitchen—Obstetrics—Psychiatry—Communicable—Public Health—and Pediatrics. Clare Ellsworth was our able captain as Juniors.

As Seniors, with Mary deFluiter our President, we took on a new dignity and carriage as only Seniors can do, so the younger students might have a good example to follow. Miss Johnson came to us as House Director this year and started a series of delightful Friday afternoon teas, with our beautiful radio playing a big part. With picnics—skating parties—formals—and a boat ride, our time was full to overflowing, including the time and energy everyone contributed to make the Annual a success.

Now, with examinations almost over and graduation in the near future, we are all looking forward to the day of black bands and white uniforms, not without a pang of regret that our student days in crisp blue and white are almost ended, never to be re-lived.

Things to Come

A short while ago my vacation in Hawaii ended; but while there, and since my return, I have accidentally, but very pleasantly, run into many of my friends and classmates. Some of them are now engaged in most peculiar businesses and professions, considering the fact that we all started out to be nurses.

First of all, in Hawaii I found Marianne Linkman very happy and the wife of the doctor, who is superintendent of the largest and most successful hospital there. Catherine Owens and Kathleen Rhoads stayed at the same hotel where I was, as their airplane, on which they are both hostesses, stopped for a rest on the way from California to Japan. They said that they had recently taken June Partington back to the coast for a vacation from her post at a mission hospital in China.

On the way back the ship took us through the Panama Canal. There I learned that La Verne Scott was getting along very well as a superintendent of nurses at the army hospital. Alice Davies is a well-known Director of Public Health Nurses in that district.

As we arrived in New York, whom should I meet but Roberta Hall and Margaret Corathers, just returning from a European tour and ready to start the new semester at Columbia University, where they are learning to be instructors of nurses. They said that in the Swiss Alps they found Palma Leaverton polishing up the latest technique in ice skating and skiing. Marcella Glass had married an official in the Italian Government, and is permanently established near Rome. Gladys Lykins and Jesse-Belle Kirker are running an antique shop in London.

The latest sensation of Broadway was when Eileen Newman put Rio Rita out of business with her all-male swing orchestra. Margaret Yoder just had published a book surpassing all records of Emily Post, on the latest methods of making love.

Barbara Wright—working in Marshall Field Department Store in Chicago—is now giving free knitting lessons with each ball of yarn. Virginia Stewart is ably assisting a well-known pathologist in research. Mary Iskeit is now in Hollywood, playing straight dramatic roles opposite Robert Taylor.

According to the New York Times, there is now no place in the realms of society for Mrs. Vanderbilt since Mary deFluiter has taken over all social entertaining of the four hundred. Helen McLaren and Jane Kersh are the successful matrons of an old maids' home and are surrounded with innumerable cats and parrots.

Clare Ellsworth has carried her well-known executive ability to the last degree by being elected President of the Ohio State Nurses' Association. Julia Shaw was recently named Betty Co-ed of Harvard campus, where Dorothy Rix ran a close second. Since then Dorothy has retired to her ranch in Arizona with her cowboy.

On my last visit to our old Hospital, I found that Miss Montague's position, from which she had retired, is being ably filled by Margaret Pettus. Margaret has now had her hair cut short, and goes on a weekly journey to the beauty parlor. Mabel Webb and Inis Prater are keeping Dr. Woodward busy and the nursery full.

As mannequins at Pogue's, we found Alice Beach in the lingerie department and Patty Alfied showing the latest stream-lined evening gowns. Are the crowds flocking!

We heard that Ann Winant, with all true flavor of the Old South, is the perfect Southern belle of Georgia; and in the last international contest for the nearest likeness to Venus de Milo, Norma Constant carried off the honors.

We are continuously hearing on the radio that Major Bowes' most outstanding presentation of the year is Kathryn Hamilton, Ruth Moebus and June Staider, with their unique arrangement of a single-fingered Jews harp trio.

Kathleen Safford has become the featured model for Paton, the French hair designer, and the latest celebrated star of the Metropolitan Opera Company is Elsie Reichel, who is winning the public with her charming lyric soprano.

Now that it is time for me to go back to my work as one of the artists in Walt Disney's studio, we must all wait till another vacation to hear the next exciting installment of class news.

Providibamus

We, the Seniors of The Christ Hospital School of Nursing, Class of 1938, hoping that we are in full possession of all mental faculties, and being fairly sure that we are of sound mind and body, and of legal age, desire at this time to bequeath to our school, hospital and fellow-students our various possessions and properties, and hereby declare this document to be our last will and testament on this 18th day of May, 1938.

To the Junior Class, as a whole, we bequeath our worries, especially financial, on the condition that they do not worry too much. We also leave to them a standard uniform for graduation.

Our most profound respect and deepest appreciation for their many kindnesses we leave to the following:

To the Board of Directors and Trustees for making our training and graduation possible.

To the Staff for their patience in answering our never-ending questions on problems new to us.

To the Faculty for their understanding and untiring efforts to impart to us knowledge that every good nurse should know.

To the employees of the hospital for their cheerfulness in helping to lighten our burdens.

We do now bequeath to the following in good faith our own long-standing, hard-earned personality traits and possessions to do with as they see fit:

Elsie Reichel, Helen McLaren, Mary Isekeit and Jane Kersh bequeath their title, "The Four Horsemen," to Elizabeth Cox, Margaret Kautz, Jean Hatfield and Betty Jean Jackson, in the earnest hope that it will not be abused.

Alice Davies, her utmost sincerity in her work to Elvira Lehman.

Patty Alfred, her devotion to her braids to Polly Ramsay.

Margaret Corathers, her rosy complexion to Marie Noyes.

Norma Constant, her constant change of heart to Sally Jane Brown.

Mary deFluiter, a part of her six feet to Dorothy Stubbs' four feet, to even things up.

Clare Ellsworth, her executive ability to Jean Longstreth.

Marcella Glass, her sophistication to Marzetta Shindollar, long may she Shine!

Hazel Hall, her tall, dark glamour to Phyllis Minnich.

Roberta Hall, her bubbling enthusiasm for everything to Madyline Flint.

Katherine Hamilton, her individual top-curls to Lillian Hardy.

Jessie-Belle Kirker, her diminutive size to Jeanette Bevis.

Palma Leaverton, her enthusiasm for organizing skating parties to Phyllis Fulmer.

Marianne Linkman, her indescribable something to Mary Ann Flook.

Gladys Lvkins, her sweet, quiet ways to Gladys Jones.

Ruth Moebus, her professional manner at all times to Mary Jane Maris.

Eileen Newman, her own individual type of swing and sway to Alberta Peet.

Catherine Owens and Kathleen Rhoads, their sisterly love to the Holtz twins— June and Jane.

Margaret Pettus, her ability to get through training in record-breaking time to Lydia McCowan.

Inis Prater, her unruly raven ringlets to Wanda Anderson.

June Partington, her placid countenance to Kay Carmel.

Dorothy Rix, her dainty mannerisms to Virginia Brug.

Kathleen Safford, her tooth-paste smile to Nina Newman.

La Verne Scott, her homing instinct to Betty Danford.

Julia Shaw, her ability to get in the "House" to Ruth Kinsinger, for a much-needed rest.

June Staida, her electric-like vitality to Kathleen Irvin.

Virginia Stewart, her ability to be late for class to Jean Engeroff.

Mabel Webb, her unfailing good nature to Avis Mahaffey.

Ann Winant, her high-caloric diet to Helen Robinson, which probably will never be needed.

Barbara Wright, her ringleted "peroxide" hair to Lucille Evans.

Margaret Yoder, her musical titter to Caroline Parmenter.

We, the Senior Class of 1938, do hereby and herewith set our seal to this document and declare it to be our last will and testament.

(Signed)

LA VERNE SCOTT,
Legal Representative.

“B’s”

I think that I shall never see
A “D” as lovely as a “B”,
A “B” whose rounded form is pressed
Upon the records of the blest,
A “D” comes easily, and yet
It isn’t easy to forget
That “D’s” are made by fools like me,
But only work can make a “B”.

Fourth Row: Nancy Kemp, Jeannette Bevis, Virginia Brug, Bessie Satterfield, Phyllis Fulmer, Gladys Jones, Avis Mahaffey, Eileen Kirkpatrick.

Fifth Row: Ray McClure, Lydia McCowan, Jean Kehl, Margaret Kautz, Helen Howsman, Katherine Ross.

Those not present: Ruth Kinsinger, Jean Engeroff, Helen Harmon, Helen Robinson, Elnora Sprau.

The Juniors? Oh!

Wanda Anderson —

She should become a star,
Nothing does her beauty mar.

Janice Baumgardner —

Personality plus!
Impetuous little cuss.

Jeanette Bevis —

Bee can wiggle ears and nose;
Bunny ancestry — suppose?

Doris Brady —

From cellar to rafter
Echoes her laughter.

Virginia Brug —

Her motto is, "Unto others do
Before these others do unto you."

Elizabeth Cox —

Her two brown eyes with lashes long
Could conquer man, however strong.

Louise Curran — Frances

With her aristocratic air.
Throngs turn just to stare.

Bettie Curtis —

Most abstractly she knits away,
Dreaming of Tom from day to day.

Betty Danford —

With a merry, dancing eye,
Manner sweet, not too shy.

Jeanne Engeroff —

A hair-do which she hasn't tried
Has never yet been sanctified.

Lucille Evans —

She has learned to knit and purl;
Pretty soon her hair will curl.

Nina Flannery —

With diet her figure she treats,
Yet chocolate cakes she eats and eats.

Madylene Flint —

With manner lilting and pert,
She is dubbed — class flirt.

Fern Rust —

Even-tempered, sincere, serene,
Peacemaker where'er she's seen.

Mary Jane Maris —

Born but to live and die;
Lives but to wonder why.

Helen Fox —

Her tennis game is rare,
So is the way she parts her hair.

Phyllis Fulmer —

Freckled nose, saucy air,
Voices her opinion anywhere.

Marzetta Shindollar —

Writes poems like: This is spring.
My nose does run like everything.

Alberta Peet —

Not overserious, not overgay,
A good fellow in her own quiet way.

Helen Harmon —

Hear all those whispered "whys",
Inquisitive of the circles under her eyes?

Ann Hardy —

"Why hurry?" she has said;
"There'll be time after I'm dead."

Eleanor Gillespie —

A freckle here, a freckle there,
Wonder if they're under her hair?

Jean Hatfield —

Blonde today,
Tomorrow, we hope.

Helen Howsman —

Happy moron, doesn't give a dern;
Oh, well — she'll learn!

Bessie Satterfield —

Taking temperatures and giving pills,
Remedying mankind's many ills.

Elnora Sprau —

She shows you how to add the score;
She's done it so many times before.

Betty Jackson —

Under her fichu a pin is worn,
Not because her uniform's torn.

Gladys Jones —

She would make all the laws,
Just a martyr to the cause.

Gwendolyn Gerhard —

Her long tresses she clipped,
And vogues of fashion she whipped.

Margaret Kautz —

Her eyebrows are airy
And she talks about Larry.

Jean Kehl —

A nurse most efficient,
Amplitude sufficient.

Nancy Kemp —

She can sing an octave higher
Than any feathered flyer.

Ruth Kinsinger —

Complexion like a rose,
Wears no powder on her nose.

Eileen Kirkpatrick —

Attractive girl, classic nose,
Chronic cold, always blows!

Marjorie Long —

Braided pigtail with a bow,
More than sixteen she'll never grow.

The Juniors? Oh! — (Continued)

Kay McClure—

Tall and thin, thoughtful grace,
Much lurks behind that quiet face.

Lydia McCowan—

Careful never to make a breach,
Carefully articulated speech.

Avis Mahaffey—

Curls all over, kinda sassy,
Patients call her Miss Mahassey.

Phyllis Minnich—

Do a grand old - Best grade of all
Red-headed terror from a red-headed clan,

If you can't do it, Minnich can.

Ruth Morris—

Ruthie
From her window she views the dorm;
Because of football her heart is torn.

Carolyn Parmenter—

A red shirred bonnet for a crown
Causes a furore all around.

Viola Predmore—

Two dimples in her face—
That's our Viola Grace.

Helen Robinson—

Like a deacon her eyebrow she can raise;
To raise others' eyebrows never pays.

Catherine Ross—

Loquacious! independent pose,
Plus a very turned-up nose.

Ruth Spitzer—

Quiet, unruffled, not very tall,
She's an ace at basketball.

Virginia Stillwaugh —

*Bob
Bob
Bob*
She went to Kid House for a three months' stay;
Although she's back, she's still that way.

Dorothy Stubbs—

For a tiny tot she's a ringer,
But she wears a diamond on her finger.

Authors remain unrevealed—

They don't wish their blood congealed.

Junior Class Time-Table

On that memorable date, August 26, 1936, a new class sailed aboard the good ship "Preliminary" with high ambitions foremost. Aside from a few minor mishaps, the voyage was a pleasant one. Thirty-nine of us who had weathered the trip stopped to shop for new caps at Port Oliver, December 19, and while we were listening to the manager's advice on the mastery of our chosen profession, the "Preliminary" sank in the harbor.

However, we had all taken our ambitions ashore with us, so we soon transferred to a faster mode of transportation, the Christ Hospital Limited, bound for the station at the end of the line — Graduation.

The personnel was much the same, minus a few who neglected to purchase tickets and had to be put off at the next terminal. Virginia Stillwaugh was made engineer, and Miss Manthey the conductor, to keep us from getting off at the wrong station.

The first town of any size that we reached was Le Sourdsville, so we stopped to see the sights. The picnic was fun, but the biggest attraction was our conductor riding a bicycle.

The next metropolis was called Halloween. Here we had to lay over for a few hours, so the Juniors led the hospital in a noisy celebration. And again this time "shine" and "conductor" were synonymous. Remember the Big Apple?

We have separated numerous times for inspection tours of some of the cities along the tracks. The town of Gardner resembled greatly the Smithsonian Institution, for it took four months to go through it, and even now we feel we haven't seen everything, for the population is continually increasing.

We didn't stay quite so long at Heslar, but certainly enjoyed the night life while there. However, the best restaurants were found in Harpster. During our stay at Dougherty, we were introduced to many erstwhile child prodigies.

After so much entertaining, we decided to become hostesses ourselves and feted the Seniors ere they had gone forever. Here's hoping they had as much fun as we did.

Our trip is only two-thirds over, so you'll hear more from us — much more, because we are saving all the energy we can spare for next year.

Sophomore History

Libraries all over the world are filled with ancient history, medieval history and modern history, but of all the histories the one which shall go down on this page is the one most precious to a group of forty-three Sophomores.

We're going to call ours a medical history. The onset of our fever was August 25, 1937. It might have been the weather or the excitement, but most of our pulses went up to 96. For several weeks we were in a state of nervousness and excitement, and our color was definitely "green". Our diagnosis revealed that we were suffering from that dread disease, without a name, but for which no preliminary student has an immunity. The best cure for it was the "Big Sister Party," which occurred on September 10.

From then on until December we went through the secondary stage, which called for serums of one kind and another, and for much reading in books with which we became vaguely familiar. Along in October we were given a nerve stimulant by being allowed to attend the Halloween party.

The day of the crisis came on December 18 at 2:00 o'clock. Forty-eight of us listened to an inspiring lecture by Dr. William Doughty. And the moment we felt the much adored white cap on our waves, we knew that the secondary stage was over and we were on our way to recovery.

Vacations, which were greatly appreciated, helped us to gain our strength, and from then on each day's work helped to build us up.

Our convalescent treatment needed organization, so we elected Jean Longstreth as our President, Pauline Lanham for Vice-President, Sue Reynolds for Secretary and Abby Hawley as Treasurer. Our Student Council representatives were Alice Shrock, Dorothy Finley and Kay Carmel. A heart stimulant in the form of a valentine dance was given at 8:45, February 11 (we heard it was a sure cure).

On March 8 a class meeting was held and the class colors of red and white were chosen to be floated high on Class Day.

As to the prognosis of this class, we are hoping to be able to take our places with the classes who have traveled ahead of us and to come through with flying colors.

Twenty-two very fresh green plants, selected from greenhouses over the country, were shipped to the Nurses' Home, Christ Hospital, on January 12, 1938, and then were taken to the hospital to be inspected by the chief gardener. After she referred to the order slip to see if it was the correct shipment, the plants were returned to the Nurses' Home, to be planted in various rooms on third and fourth floors. The evening of the same day these plants began to sprout, and to further this growth they were taken to the nutrition department, to be fertilized and watered. Several days later two choice green plants were added to this January shipment, making a total of two dozen plants.

For the first two months, they had to become adjusted to the new environment. Each day they were pruned and tended to by the gardeners and at night were covered at 10:30. At 6:00 o'clock next morning they were uncovered, in order to be put through various tests.

Finally in March the gardeners decided that the plants were ready to be transplanted to the first and second floors of the hospital to give cheer, comfort and courage to the patients.

At the end of the third month, the plants were lined up before the chief gardener, to be inspected, and the eighteen which were found to be developing and gaining in strength and sturdiness were retained in order to send out their blossoms in the coming years.

The Christ Hospital School of Nursing has a name to uphold, and it is the duty of the student government to do this. During this year the members have been very fortunate in having not only willing faculty advisors, but also our new House Director, Miss Clara Johnson. They have helped us to keep our goal high in nursing, as well as in our own lives. We pass this goal on to our successors, knowing they will do all in their power to attain it.

The codfish lays a million eggs,

Jokes

Trixie: "Nobody likes me, everybody hates me. I'm going out and eat worms and die a terrible death."

Russ: "Why not eat a fuzzy one and be tickled to death?"

Dale: "Would you accept a pet monkey?"

Marianne: "I would have to ask father first. This is so sudden!"

Special Nurse (running into 2S nurse station): "Miss Montague, May I borrow your 'bag lifter'?"

Miss Montague: "My what?"

Special Nurse: "Your 'bag lifter'. Dr. Rush is waiting for it up on 4th, and he's in a terrible humor."

Miss Christenson: "What do you mean by bringing Miss Constant in at this hour of the morning?"

George: "Had to be at work at seven."

Father: "So you like your two suitors equally?"

Sally: "Yes, Daddy. I simply don't know which one to marry first."

Gypsy: "I'll tell your fortune."

Newman: "How much?"

Gypsy: "Fifty cents."

Newman: "Correct."

Junie: "We have a case of infantile paralysis."

June-bug: "Oh, poliomyelitis!"

Junie: "No; infantile paralysis."

Corathers: "Say, Bertie, are you using your formal tonight?"

Bertie: "I'm afraid I am."

Corathers: "Swell! Then you won't be needing your gray suit."

The difference between a hair-dresser and a sculptor is that while a hair-dresser curls up and dyes, the sculptor makes faces and busts.

Kinsinger: "This match won't light."

Robinson: "What's the matter with it?"

Kinsinger: "I don't know. It lit all right a minute ago."

Nurses are absolutely agreed that yes-men are a great deal better than no men.

Mabel: "Ann told me that you told her the secret I told you not to tell her."

Judy: "The mean thing! I told her not to tell you I told her."

Mabel: "Well, don't tell her I told you that you told me."

Dr. Cooke: "Was it a big wedding?"

Dr. Panzer: "Big! Why, I got in line twice to kiss the bride and nobody noticed me."

Jean Scott: "Can you love two girls at once?"

Dr. Grindell: "Yes, Miss Scott, immediately!"

The Cap

O, perky, crispy, little white cap—

Why do you stick there, and how?

We see no pins or elastic band—

'Tis surely by magic—I vow.

Our Book

Our Book is done ; keep it near to you ;
May its pages bring memories : friendships true,
The quietness of study hour, the soft sound
Of the wind in the trees ; joys found
In the thud of swift feet, the arching ball,
Sharp twang of racquet. Recall
The hush—and then how sweet the melody
Of voices raised in song could be.
Ay ! keep it near ! It tells of joy and strife ;
It is a measure, a plan of future life.
